

We first thought that in order to keep our discussion going, the statements of our opinions should be simple and brief.

We believe that because architecture is a structure for mankind, and therefore we should focus on the objectives of the structure.

We have first focused on the definitions of the progresses that we aim to make.

Spiritual progress can be defined as, the pursuit of a set -of values a consistent to all, by the discussion and conversation of all, based on the tolerance and respect for each others diversity, which comes from the understanding of each person's identity.

Material progress can be defined as, the invention of new ideas and the utilisation of regionally distinctive solutions, and the pursuit of a sustainable human civilization.

Social progress can be defined as, the pursuit of a compromisable balance between exclusive utilitarianism and the inclusive community of all, by discussion and conversation by all.
